THEY WERE ALL HERE.

MERCHANTS OUT IN FORCE.

They are Well Pleased with Their Entertainment and Speak Highly of City.

The special train having on board the members of the Milwaukee Merchants and Manufacturers' association arrived in the city last Wednesday evening promptly on schedule time. The escort of citizens accompanied by the band were at the depot to meet them, and those who cared to do so were marched up town in company with our citizens, after which they scattered about town and were amused in small groups.

Nearly every member of the party found several of his customers in this city, and in many instances it was like a meeting of old friends, even those who had never met before. Some of our merchants were taken to the train where there was entertainment for all who cared to participate.

Later in the evening a party was assembled and with a committee of the Advancement association as guides, were shown thru the new paper mill of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper Co. An institution of this size operated entirely by electricity, was a revelation to those men who came from a city, the proportions of which are something mammoth compared with the little cities which they visit annually, and they were not slow to express their admiration of the plant and its equipment.

One characteristic of the men on these excursions is that they are not looking to be entertained. When they arrive a town, they seem to have certain people in sight that they wish to visit, and they branch out and take in a place pretty thoroughly before they get through with it.

"You have one of the prettiest little cities here that we have visited," said one member of the party, "and I can see no reason why you should not have a city here that will rival anything in this part of the state. If there is anything in location, you are certainly entitled to win here."

Another one said: "I have been shipping goods to Grand Rapids for the past twenty years, but this is the first time I have ever been here. When I see the acquaintance and sociability that exists between the residents of a city this size it makes me want to leave the city and settle in some smaller place. You certainly have a fine little city, with the best of prospects for a bright future."

WILL BUILD NEW SHOPS.

The Grand Rapids Foundry Co. to Move Their Plant.

A deal was closed today by Otto Roenius by which the Grand Rapids Foundry Company acquires the title to two acres of land on the west side, and the company will erect a machine shop, foundry and pattern house on the site.

The land was purchased from Carl Perling and is located one block north of the hub and spoke factory, west of the tracks where the Wisconsin Central crosses the St. Paul. The site is an excellent one for the purpose intended, bordering on two of the railroads that enter the city.

It is the intention of the company to erect a modern plant in every respect and the buildings will be constructed of concrete blocks. The machine shop will be 150x50 feet on the ground, but the size of the foundry and pattern house have not been decided on.

The foundations of the buildings will be constructed this fall, so that work can be begun on the buildings the first thing in the spring. The company has found their present quarters inadequate to handle their increasing business, besides which their shipping facilities are not what they should be for an institution of this sort in their present location. The company expects to put considerable attention to the manufacture of their steel cast and wood chime, the orders for which have been coming so rapidly that they have been unable to keep up with them.

The capital stock of the company will also be increased to $20,000 and Oscar Eubling will become a member of the corporation. The officers of the company are now: E. Roenius, President and manager; Otto R. Roenius, secretary and treasurer; Fred Roenius being also a member of the company.

PROGRAM ABOUT COMPLETE.

Fourth of July Committee Now Has all the Details of Day Well in Hand.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration have been making rapid progress the past week and they now promise us a celebration that will be second to none that has been held in this city for years past. The greater number of our citizens have been quite liberal in their donations, so that there is an abundance of money to carry out the arrangements made by the committee. The following events have been arranged up to date, and it is entirely probable that additional ones will be arranged before the great day arrives.

The forenoon program will be held on main street on the west side, and is as follows:

Fire run by the west side fire company at 10 o'clock.

Wheelbarrow race, 10:30 o'clock, prizes, $5, $2, $1.

Bicycle Race, 10:45, prizes, $5, $2, $1.

Sack Race, 11:00 o'clock, prizes, $5, $2, $1.

One hundred yard dash, 11:20, prizes $5, $2, $1.

Catching greased pig, winner to take the pig.

There will also be a road race during the forenoon open to all wheelmen, not professionals, the first prize to be a $50 Hamilton wheel donated by the Pop Manufacturing Co. This will start from in front of the Dixon house and will be over a course about five miles in length. There will also be a number of other prizes in this event besides the one mentioned.

In the afternoon there will be a number of events held at the fair grounds on the east side, which will be as follows:

Free for all trotting and pacing race, 2:00 o'clock, for which there will be liberal cash prizes.

Running race, cash prizes.

Three minute trotting race, liberal cash prizes.

Ball game, Lacrosse against Grand Rapids.

Blue Rock tournament, to be held on the river bank.

In the evening at 7:00 o'clock there will be a fire run by the east side fire company.

A high dive from the top of the wagon bridge into the river at 7:15.

Swimming race at 7:15, prizes $5, $2, and $1.

Log rolling contest at 7:30, winner to get $15.

Fire works at 8:30.

Dance at the opera house.

The committee in charge of affairs is composed of C. F. Kruger, Sam Church, Geo. H. Metcalfe, J. J. Jeffrey, Henry Sampson, Jr., and Chas. S. Whittlesey.

Below is given a list of those who have donated to the fund up to the present time. There are a number of others who have not been seen as yet, but will no doubt subscribe something upon being interviewed on the matter. These will be given next week.

WILL OPEN A HOSPITAL.

The Upper Part of the Lyon Building to be Fitted up for this Purpose.

Drs. Ridgman, Waters and Ryan have practically rented the two upper stories of the Lyon building on the west side, which is now in course of reconstruction, and it is their intention to make the place into a hospital for the accommodation of patients from out of town as well as here who may wish to take treatment in an institution of this sort.

There was a time when sick people had a horror of being taken to a hospital, but as methods have improved and the public has become more broadly educated on the matter, this has gradually changed, until now it is an established fact, well known to the general public, that better results may be obtained at a hospital than in the home of the patient, where he or she is surrounded with the care and attention of well meaning but often unskilled relatives.

There are several reasons for this. One is that at a hospital the services of a trained nurse are always available, and it is now well known that proper nursing is as important a feature in treating the sick as the attendance of a competent physician. In the new hospital there will be eleven rooms for the accommodation of patients, besides offices for the doctors, and it would seem as if the scheme would prove a success.

First Gasoline Launch.

The first gasoline launch to make its appearance in this vicinity was that belonging to Henry Winger and Earl Wood. These two boys have been working on a craft of this sort for some time past, and though it is not complete in all its details it was launched last Friday and given a trial spin up and down the river. The boat made very good time on its first trip, apparently running between six and seven miles an hour, and it came up the river against the current at a good speed.

The boys have a two horse power marine gasoline engine, and a sixteen foot row boat, which they have remodelled sufficiently to receive the propeller. Their trial on Friday was only preliminary, and they have taken the boat from the water again and intend to deck it over and make some other alterations before placing the engine in position permanently. When the boat is completed the boys intend to place it in the pond above the dam, and later in the season when they have become seasonal navigators, it is the intention to make a trip to St. Louis and visit the exposition.

Shooting Affair at the Point.

Miss Anna Gustomski was shot and probably fatally wounded at Stevens Point on Sunday evening by Peter Zmuda. The young man wanted to marry the girl, but owing to his disolute habits she had refused to have anything to do with him, and the result was that on Sunday evening while standing on the bridge Zmuda approached her from the rear and fired four shots at her, one of which took effect in the spine. At last reports the woman was still alive, but the entire lower part of her body is paralyzed, and little hopes held out for her recovery. The young woman was a domestic and Zmuda is a cigar maker. He has been in the habit of threatening to shoot persons whom he disliked when under the influence of liquor, but was thought to be harmless.

A Challenge.

The Elks of Marshfield have issued a challenge to the Elks of Grand Rapids to play a game of baseball ball the local Elks to select the place and time of playing. It is probable that the challenge will be accepted.

Notice to Dog Owners.

The dog license for the year 1904 is now due and payable to the city clerk of the city of Grand Rapids. If not paid before July 15 the same will be placed in the hands of the chief of police for collection and a fee of 25 cents charged in addition to the license. Dated June 7, 1904. C. E. Boles, City Clerk.

DROWNED IN RIVER.

OSCAR OLSON THE VICTIM.

Falls From Pier of Railway Bridge and Sinks in Fifteen Feet of Water.

The Wisconsin river claimed another victim on Sunday afternoon, the body of Oscar Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Olson, who was drowned while swimming with some companions near the Green Bay and Western bridge. The body was recovered from the water within half an hour after the boy had fallen in, but in spite of the efforts of these physicians it was impossible to resuscitate him.

The boy was about fourteen years of age and in company with several companions about his own age, was bathing near the Green Bay bridge. The testimony of those who were with him is to the effect that the boy had been in the water near the bridge, but that he ran out onto the bridge. While there some persons came upon the bridge and in order to get out of sight young Olson climbed down onto the stone abutment that supports the bridge at that point. It is thought that while attempting to cross on this stone pier beneath the bridge he struck something that caused him to lose his balance and fall into the river.

The river at this point is now quite deep, and as none of the boys were very near him, they could do nothing to help him until it was too late. It seems that young Olson could not swim, and that several of his companions were no better off.

As soon as the boys who were with him came to a realization of what had happened they gave the alarm, and a boat was sent and a search made for the body. It did not take long to find it, and with the aid of a pole it was brought to the surface.

Drs. Ridgman, Rydwell and Lutz were summoned, and the boys waited over the unfortunate form for some time it was impossible to do anything, and at last hope of recovery was abandoned.

Justice Cooper impounded a jury which viewed the remains and then took an adjournment until Monday at one o'clock, when the boys who had been in bathing with young Olson were examined, and their testimony was practically as given above. Apparently none of them saw him when he took the plunge into the water, that resulted in his death, although several saw him soon after, and found the splash as he went in.

After hearing all the evidence the jury brought in a verdict of accidental drowning.

Oscar was fourteen years of age and a bright young fellow, and well liked by his companions. His mother has been sick for some time past, and it was feared the news of her boy's tragic death would cause her death, and this it caused her a severe shock, she being as well as can be expected.

Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50 which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coacalla, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Otto's Pharmacy.

CHILDREN BURN OR DROWN

Over One Thousand Sunday School Excursionists Meet Death on Flaming Steamer in Hell Gate, New York

Over 1,000 persons, according to the coroner's estimate, lost their lives June 15 by the burning of the excursion steamer Gen. Slocum in Long Island sound while on their way to the Adirondack Park in the whirled pool at Hell Gate.

The disaster was appalling in its immensity, dramatic in its episodes, and deeply pathetic in the tender age of most of the victims.

The rescue during and after the catastrophe were the kind that make the heart sick. Mothers huddled their children to their breasts in love and terror, some forced to choose between certain death in the flames and almost equally certain death in the water.

Some, made frantic by their sudden peril, threw their babies into the whirling waters of Hell Gate, hoping somehow for improbable rescue, while many were not allowed the poor privilege of choosing, but were forced overboard by the mad rush of the panic-stricken passengers in their efforts to get away from the flames.

The steamer, with the annual Sunday school excursion of St. Mark's German Lutheran church on board, was proceeding up the river to one of the many resorts of Long Island sound. When near the Hell Gate, the Twenty-fifth street persons on shore saw smoke and flames sprang from the upper part of the crowded steamer.

THE BURNING BOAT DRIFTING DOWN THE RIVER.

A panic ensued on the boat almost instantly.

Owing to the rocks on either side of the channel at this point, it had been impossible to beach the vessel.

The captain stood at his post at the wheel and headed the vessel straight down the river for North Brother Island, where she was put aground in shallow water.

Several hundred feet of open water still lay between the burning steamer and the shore and many persons perished either in the water or on the burning vessel after she had been beached. It was estimated that the steamer carried more than 2,000 persons.

She was the largest excursion steamer in these waters and could carry 4,000 passengers.

The boat caught fire in Hell Gate and the flames had complete control before any move could be made to check them.

Excited scenes of panic followed. It was impossible to run the boat ashore, because of the Hell Gate rocks on either side, and the captain kept her headed for North Brother Island.

Nothing could be done in the way of launching boats, and as the flames advanced, the passengers began to jump overboard. They went into the river by hundreds.

Many were rescued by tugs and other vessels, which promptly came to the rescue when the flames were seen. An eyewitness said that the greatest loss of life was due to the capsizing of the heavy motor deck. It fell with a crash soon after the fire started, crushing hundreds of persons who had gathered on the lower deck. It was then that the greatest panic ensued amid the living stream of persons going over the rail into the water.

The billiard and bowling room crowd, who pass all their time in the club playing their favorite game or watching others when the tables and alleys are occupied; the card-room set, who only come to the club for the purpose of a game of poker or a rubber of whist; and finally, the window coterie, which embraces all the loiterers and habitués, who naturally frequent the windows as the pleasantest seats.

Cotton-Growing in Spain. The growing of cotton in Spain is being encouraged by the government by exempting land from taxes and offering prizes for the most successful experiments.

He Has More Trouble. A man's hair turns gray five years sooner than a woman's.

With its limited space the New York morgue could not begin to accommodate the silent forms which came to its doors as a result of the appalling disaster to the steamer General Slocum, June 15, and it extended its grim jurisdiction to the long pier at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street, along which there are now two long lines of plain plank coffins, with an aisle between, down and up which the sobbing fathers, mothers and children walk in their search for their dead.

Mothers with their infants so tightly clasped to their breasts that they could hardly be taken away; little girls, their holiday finery bedraggled by the cruel waters of the river and scorched by the flames, still holding to their breasts their little dolls; one especially, a curly-headed little boy, whose dead hands still fondly held a little tin horse, the leath string of which dangled pathetically over the edge of the muffled coffin; strong men, whose torn hands and bruised faces showed well that they did their whole duty—all these were lying silent.

Upon these looked the living with distress on their faces that it was not good to see. They peered into the coffins with almost insane eyes; a shriek, a moan, the sound of a falling woman or a hoarse shout of a man announced that some one had found his dead.

Police men with wet eyes but firmly set teeth stood guard. Time and again they saved women who, crazed with grief, made a plunge for the river. Attempts at suicide were so frequent at the long death pier that they ceased to be a novelty.

Amid these scenes of agony the undertakers developed a shameless rivalry for business, which even the police were unable to curb. Like "hyster" lawyers, they had their runners and ambulance chasers, and there were actual squabbles at times over the dead.

Henry Harfincamp found his little sister Mary among the dead. June 16 a score of this child's friends were to have gathered at her home to celebrate her eleventh birthday, and the child had talked all the week of the musical happiness of the two days of pleasure; a picnic one day and a birthday party the next.

Henry found the child in her little pine box and, throwing himself across the body, refused to leave and fiercely fought the men who tried to tear him away.

Albert Twiss went through the line with his wife Anna, looking for Bert, their 13-year-old boy. They found him at last, and while the mother fell fainting on the floor the father's eyes took a queer look. He knelt beside the boy, chafed the boy's ears, and in a stern tone ordered him to get up. His peremptory commands to children, a boy of 7 and a girl of 5. The devoted grandmother lost her life in trying to save the children of her son.

The grandmother gathered the two little ones in her arms at the first alarm of fire. As the flames swept all the aged woman dropped to her knees on the deck and wrapped her skirts about the children in an effort to shield them from the flames.

"Never mind me," she cried to the rescuers. "It doesn't make any difference about me. Come and get the children."

At that moment there was a mad dash to the stern of the boat on the upper deck. The vessel was more than the deck would stand, and it fell with a crash. Mrs. Birmingham was struck by a piece of the wreckage and rushed to death, and the two little ones met the same fate.

Among those who merit praise for heroism in the work of rescue is Mary McCann, aged 17 years, who recently landed here from Ireland, and who is employed as a waitress on North Brother Island. Four lines she swam out from the shore to the side of the burning boat and each time she returned with a little child in her arms. She was going out the fifth time when one of the doctors caught her and ordered her to go up on the grass and lie down. The girl was so exhausted she could hardly stand.

"It made me crazy," she said, "to see those little ones in the water. I never knew I could swim so well before. I am sure I could have gone out again and brought one of those babies back if the doctor had not stopped me."

Provide For Good Drainage. The past two seasons have been wet ones. A large amount of snow fell the past winter. This spring the ground will be thoroughly soaked. What the summer weather will be is of course a guess, but it is safe to provide for thorough drainage, as this work will result in better crops in either a wet or dry season. If wet, the best of tilling and surface drainage will be necessary. Plans should be made early. The idea that thorough drainage is unnecessary has been pretty effectively dissipated. If the season is very dry the land will stand the drought better for having been well drained. For best results any season plan to drain your farm as thoroughly as possible. —Orange Judi Farmer.

BABCOCK.

Quite a number of our citizens went to Pittsville Sunday to see the game of ball between Pittsville and Necedah.

Dr. Morse and his wife spent Sunday at Daly the guests of J. Q. Daniels and family.

Miss Nellie Addelman is home for a vacation from Milwaukee where she has been attending school.

Some of our baseball team went to Nekoosa Sunday to assist the Mather team got beat. We understand the score was 12 to 10 in favor of Nekoosa, according to the score we think the best players in both the Babcock and Mather teams stayed at home.

The young gentlemen of our village will give a return ball, tonight, to the young ladies, who gave the fairy ball about two weeks ago, the Pittsville band will furnish the music, and the refreshments will be served at the home of Mrs. Stiles.

L. Ward has moved his family from Pittsville to Babcock where they will hereafter make their home.

Mrs. Ida Loper of Wausau is visiting the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Riehlhoff.

The residence being built here by J. E. Ingraham is nearing completion. It is modern and up to date in every respect, being steam heated and gas lighted. It stands on an eminence of about twenty acres, it will when completed be a beautiful home for Mr. Ingraham and family, also a decided ornament for the little town.

Frank Brostowitz.

Of Interest To Nurserymen. Nurserymen, as well as the growers of plants, are interested in all efforts looking to preventing the introduction of pernicious insects and plant diseases. Chapter 180 of the laws of 1899, makes it imperative for our Experiment Station to inspect all nurseries and ascertain by personal study, whether or not the plants they contain are infected with insects and fungus pests. This work is in charge of Prof. E. P. Sandston, Horticulturist. Mr. Sandston has secured the services of Mr. Christen Bues of New York, an expert in these matters. All nurserymen wishing their premises inspected should send application at once to Prof. E. P. Sandston, Agricultural Experiment Station, Madison, Wis., in order that Mr. Bues may visit their premises while in the state.
